Drivers get spring fever and traffic citations increase in area

April started off with a traffic "bang" according to California Highway Patrol Captain Don Watkins, commander of highway traffic control in the east half of San Diego County.

Watkins reported that during the first week of April, CHP officers cited 224 drivers for speeding - 135 of whom were driving faster than 55 mph.

Other statistics: 85 were arrested for drunk driving; 249 didn't have seat belts fastened; eight had tots without the required safety seats; and 288 carried no evidence of insurance.

In Lemon Grove, 221 persons were cited for speeding during the first week of April. Thirty wore no seat belts; seven were arrested as DUI's, and 89 had no evidence of insurance according to Sheriff's Sgt. Rusty Burkett, who is Lemon Grove's traffic commander.

18 companies compete for share of long distance pay phone market

People who use Pacific Bell pay phones are finding that something new has been added: a sign on the phone will identify the long distance company that will complete out-of-area and out-of-state calls.

"Up until now, AT&T was handling all collect calls, those billed to another number, and credit card calls," said Ray Ruiz, group project manager for Pacific Bell public phones. "But with increasing competition, 18 different long distance companies will be able to compete for a share of this California market."

Pacific Bell will continue to handle calls made to points within the service areas. AT&T will continue to handle long distance calls paid with coin to out-of-area and out-of-state points.

Selection of the serving long distance company will be made by the property owner on whose premises the phone is located.

Callers who want to have out-of-area or out-of-state calls completed by another company can reach other carriers who serve the area by dialing the five-digit carrier code plus "0"

All long distance companies will accept a Pacific Bell calling card for long distance calls.

State controller distributes funds

In the February apportionment of tax revenues from the Motor Vehicle License Fee Account by the Office of the State Controller, San Diego County received $1,677,745 and the City of Lemon Grove received $44,196. Lemon Grove also received $22,412 from the Highway Users Tax Fund and $6,263 from the Cigarette Tax Fund.

Defense surplus sale on April 20

The Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office of San Diego, has announced that a retail sale will be held on Thursday, April 20, at its facility in building 184, outlying landing field, Imperial Beach.

The sale will be 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and is open to the public.

Items to be sold include consumer type articles such as furniture, typewriters, tools and clothing items. Property will be identified with the sale price.

All sales will be cash and the purchaser must remove items at the time of sale. All property will be sold "as is, where is."

For further information about the sale, please call Eleanor Tietz at 437-9498.

Proposed route of SDCWA pipeline could be major inconvenience to area residents, if approved

During a workshop meeting Tuesday, the Lemon Grove City Council was informed by consultants representing the San Diego County Water Authority (SDCWA) that the favored route for placement of a water pipe, 6 to 9 feet in diameter, lies the length and nearly half the breadth of Lemon Grove.

The proposed route, within the boundaries of Lemon Grove, runs south from highway 94 under Massachusetts Avenue, then east on San Miguel and Palm Avenues (tunneling under the intersection at Lemon Grove Avenue) and south again under Skyline Boulevard, where the pipeline eventually is to meet Sweetwater Boulevard.

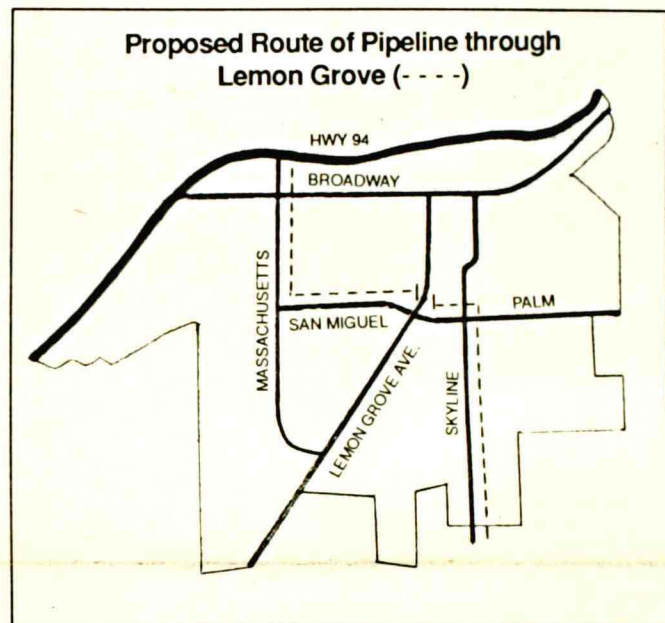

The City, the experts said, can expect considerable disruption during the construction of the line in block-long segments, which will require several months to complete.

Consultant Brian F. Mooney, of Brian F. Mooney Assoc., said two alternate routes, one along the length of Sweetwater Road, and another farther east, were considered less desirable due to increased costs and increased community disruption during construction. The Sweetwater Road route is also prohibited by CALTRANS, Mooney said, because CALTRANS will not permit easements in the right-of-way dictated by the proposed 125 freeway extension. The findings are based on an environmental impact report and eventually to the Lower Otay Reservoir, Mooney indicated.

The objective of the SDCWA, as stated in the environmental impact report, is to "meet fore-developed by the consulting firm.

The pipe line proposed by SDCWA to be routed through Lemon Grove, is a relatively minor, but necessary extension of a larger project which will also disrupt areas of La Mesa and San Carlos, as well as points south, casted water demand requirements in the year 2010."

Construction is projected to begin in 1991. A public information meeting is scheduled to be conducted at the Lemon Grove Community center, 3146 School Lane, 7:30 p.m., May 31.

Hanning honored by Soroptimists

Three independent judges selected Ilse Hanning to receive the Women in Action Award presented annually by Soroptimist International of Lemon Grove.

Judges Karen Thomson, City Clerk/finance director for the City of Lemon Grove; City Councilman Brian Cochran; and Christine Munez of the Union Bank, Lemon Grove, chose Hanning for her outstanding contributions in volunteer work and in her profession.

Hanning, slated to retire this summer from her nine-year post as assistant superintendent of the Lemon Grove School District in charge of instruction and personnel, was a school principal for 10 years and employed as a teacher for the prior 15 years.

The $100 Soroptimist award benefits the recipient's favorite charity, which Hanning designated to be the Youth Campership Fund of the Davis "Y" of La Mesa. She said she also volunteers her efforts to the Youth Services Committee of the Y.M.C.A., the United Way East

1989 Soroptimist Women in Action award winner

County steering committee, the United Way Child Abuse Prevention Grant Task Force, and is an active member of the Lemon Grove Soroptimist Club.

Hanning, who is a native of Vienna, attended the University of South Dakota on a scholarship and met her husband, Keith, there in 1951. They have five children, one of whom is adopted.

She has visited her homeland several times throughout the years, and has hosted numerous European guests in her Lemon Grove home, cheerfully referring to herself as "an ambassador of American life!"

Six other women were also recognized for their contributions to their community: Virginia Dugas, Wageonia Hulse, Sheila Lewis, Judi Miller, June M. Mott and Rose Pecoraro.

Sales and use tax funds distributed

The City of Lemon Grove was issued $217,087 in California sales and use tax funds as its share of the tax collected by the State Board of Equalization.

From the same fund, San Diego County received $9.3 million.

From the half-percent transaction and use tax, passed in last November's election, San Diego County received $10.6 million for its Regional Transport Commission.

Metropolitan Water District expands capacity of Skinner Filtration Plant

Metropolitan Water District has authorized a $48-million construction contract for the expansion of a regional treatment plant which serves Riverside and San Diego counties.

The contract is part of a $108-million enlargement of the Skinner Filtration Plant, south of Winchester in Riverside County. The two new treatment plant modules will increase the Skinner plant's delivery capacity to 520 million gallons per day (mgd), said Chief Engineer Charles Nichols.

The plant currently produces a maximum of 320 mgd, or about 40% of the total amount of treated water used by 2.1 million people living in southern Riverside County and the coastal plain of San Diego County. Treatment facilities operated by other water districts provide the remainder of the water consumed in San Diego County.

Law agencies use high tech systems to identify suspects from fingerprints

Detective Bill Walkup of the Lemon Grove Sheriff Station auto theft division made an arrest last week with the assistance of a system that wasn't available until two years ago. Without it, the arrest probably wouldn't have happened, he said.

The system, California Identification, or CAL-ID, is a high-tech computer program which identifies new fingerprints to those retained within its data base.

Earlier this year, Deputy Ken Janulewicz recovered an abandoned stolen auto, engine removed, on the 3100 block of Lamar Springs Court in Spring Valley. Janulewicz dusted the car for fingerprints and, unable to locate the registered owner, had the vehicle, valued at $10,000, towed to storage.

Useable prints lifted from the car were sent to CAL-ID, located within the Sheriff's Crime Lab. The CAL-ID computer discovered a positive match. The fingerprints were those of Michael Hite, 34, of San Diego, who had a lengthy record of arrests. The prior arrests had made Hite's prints available to CAL-ID for matching, Walkup said.

The identifying print was of Hite's right middle finger and the computer found 15 points of identifying characteristics on the match. The District Attorney's office accepts ten characteristic points as positive proof, Walkup stated.

Walkup made some inquiries and discovered Hite to be in custody at the San Diego jail on charges of false impersonation—lying about his identity—to an officer, and was about to be released.

The detective visited the jail, and re-booked Hite for the possession of stolen property. Additional charges are pending, Walkup said.

The crime was solved using state-of-the-art technology only recently available, and which may well become on the the all-time greatest benefits to law enforcement.

The local system, used by many law enforcement agencies in San Diego County, has matched a total of 569 latent and criminal prints since January of 1988, according to Anita Mauck, CAL-ID project coordinator. (The total is a combination of the successful matches of 2 terminals; one located at the San Diego Police Dept., used only by that agency, and another at the San Diego County Sheriff's Department, used by all other participating agencies.)

"In most cases, these matches, or 'hits,' have led to arrests. In other cases, we haven't found them yet, but we know who they are," said Mauck.

Fingerprinting was first established as a method of identification during the 1880's. The prints, known as "latents," were obtained at crime scenes, and then could be matched with the person suspected to have committed the crime—a confirmation that the known suspect had been at the scene of the crime. Latent prints were useless unless they could be matched against an identified suspect.

With the CAL-ID system, technicians are now able to match print-to-print and then instantly identify the person, dispensing with a string of aliases used by a suspect and revealing prior arrests, for example. Providing this criminal identification requires only that he or she was arrested and booked into jail before, Mauck said, adding that CAL-ID has a 28% success rate in criminal identification.

For the San Diego Region, CAL-ID annual operating costs are projected to be $925,000 and nearly half that amount is funded by a percentage of the fines collected by the courts. CAL-ID is authorized to collect fifty cents on every $10 fine, Mauck said.

The balance of operating costs is shared by municipalities which choose to participate. The Lemon Grove City Council voted last October to participate in the system at an estimated cost of $1,500 for 1988-89, based on the frequency of usage.

A new regional data base, with the capacity to retain and match more than 600,000 fingerprints is expected to be operational in late October of this year, Mauck said. There are similar systems in San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange Counties.

Currently in the planning stages is the Western Identification Network (WIN), which will enable eleven western states to access one another's data base.

Like Sherlock Holmes, the smudged ink cards, based on a system developed in the 1890's, will become obsolete. A computerized Columbo has arrived—can Robocop be far behind?

Deputies display calm in apprehending suspect

Donald H. Baron, 32, of Spring Valley, was arrested in Lemon Grove Monday on a string of felony charges including brandishing a deadly weapon in a threatening manner, which could have cost him his life, were it not for the composure exhibited by deputies during the incident.

Sheriff's Deputy Glen Revell responded to a 2 p.m. call to a home on Canton Drive made by Baron's former wife, who was in possession of a temporary restraining order, according to Det. Bruce Fulton, spokesman for the Lemon Grove substation.

Baron, who later admitted to drinking rum, had damaged her car and smashed the windshield, but was gone when Deputy Revell arrived. The suspect's car was located parked nearby on El Roy, and Revell assumed the suspect was still in the area.

Additional officers arrived to assist in the search, and Baron was discovered hiding in the crawlspace beneath his wife's home, with a 13" kitchen butcher knife in his possession. He began throwing rocks and pieces of cinder block at officers, who attempted to establish dialogue with the suspect.

Baron begged to be shot, stating, "I'm ready to die," and made slashing motions toward Sheriff's Sergeant Jerry Finley, threatening to "cut him up" and making other menacing statements.

Becoming more volatile, the suspect picked up a pipe and battered the natural gas pipe leading into the house until it broke, then attempted to ignite the leak with a cigarette lighter, threatening to "blow up the house" or burn it, with his two children inside.

Failing that, Baron turned to destroying all the wiring he could reach from the crawlspace. At this point, two hours after the incident began Revell stepped away to confer with negotiators of the Sheriff's Dept. Baron saw the momentary opening and made a bid for escape, Fulton said.

Deputy Larry Lamper ordered his canine partner to pursue, but soon called him off, fearing for the dog's safety.

Baron was pursued by deputies, over a chain link fence and in other directions, when the suspect stopped, facing Deputy Jack Smith, and holding the knife overhead, pointed it toward Smith and stated, "Shoot me. Go ahead, kill me."

Fulton said that it is this kind of gesture at such close proximity that leads to tragic results.

Deputy Revell approached the suspect from behind and the suspect dropped the knife.

Baron was booked into San Diego jail on felony charges which include attempted arson, threats to family, assault with a deadly weapon on police officers, exhibiting a deadly weapon in a threatening manner, vandalism, destroying phone and gas lines, and violating a temporary restraining order. Baron remains in custody on $250,000 bail.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

A friendly attorney reminded us recently that Americans have given up one of their important rights without a squawk.

It comes on the wings of court reform action called "tort reform." Tort is a court cause in which the "tortee" says he has been injured.

How many times have we warned our readers to beware of any action that comes under the banner of "reform?"

Several of the dozens of changes are to become shocking to the injured party when he tries to take his claim to court.

The friendly lawyer says, "Thinking of suing your insurance company for dealing with you in bad faith? Forget it!"

"Interested in suing the poison control center doctor because he gave you the wrong information when your three-year-old drank a bottle of cough syrup? No chance."

"How about bringing suit against your former employer for firing you because you refused to walk his dog after work? Sorry."

Some changes have been relatively minor. Others have been of earth-shattering proportions.

"Collectively, however, they have all been done under the ambiguous auspices of 'tort reform,' a term popularly used to explain how best to cure society's ill," explains the Association of California Trial Lawyers.

"According to the popular wisdom of some," the Association avers, "outrageous costs of insurance can be magically reduced through 'tort reforms.' This is nonsense!"

"It's nonsense to believe that frivolous and fraudulent lawsuits can be eradicated through 'tort reforms.' Or that the economic ills of government and private business can be cured through 'tort reform.'"

The soothing tones of "tort reform" often mask the fact that another legal right is being chipped away.

The civil justice system, based on hundreds of years of English and American legal tradition, is designed to do two things. The first is to ensure that individuals and enterprises that cause injury or damage are held accountable for their actions.

The second is to serve as a deterrent for potential wrongdoers, to prevent future damage and injuries out of fear of having to make redress.

But many rights have been sacrificed under the canopy of political or judicial expediency.

Some of the 50 or more changes which resulted:

It eliminates the right to sue an insurance company that resorts to flim-flam in settling a claim. Individuals may still sue to settle the claim itself, but not to bring to account insurers that illegally delay or otherwise act in bad faith.

A poison control center is immune from liability when it negligently gives out poison information in an emergency.

It greatly increases the burden of proof on plaintiffs in product liability cases, and exempts some products that are "inherently harmful" from product liability suits.

Few people will recognize their loss of legal rights until they attempt to make a claim.

The California Trial Lawyers Association says that without a strong tort system, there is less reason for manufacturers to make safe and sound products, for insurers to treat consumers fairly, or for employers to act responsibly.

In the interest of additional fairness, it should be noted that many trial lawyers have themselves been frivolous in accepting cases that did nothing more than to produce a legal fee from the client.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

Did you know that the world championship L.A. Lakers basketball team came from my home town, Minneapolis, Minnesota? The team was owned by Max Winters, a local entrepreneur, and had won several world championships. The name Lakers was so appropriately chosen for Longfellow's beautiful "Land of Lakes."

I can still remember some of the famous team members that came into my restaurant, Ranch Bar-B-Q, to devour some of our smoked ribs and chicken: Jim Pollard, Vern Mikkelsen and the greatest of them all, George Mikan, were just a few.

In those days, late 40's and early 50's, I became an ardent sports fan and a big supporter of our champion Lakers. Basketball was one of the first sports to be televised in our area and I did not miss a game that came over my new miracle "boob-tube," a 10-inch Hallicraft T.V.

In the early 60's, the Lakers moved to Los Angeles, and there, winning more World Championships and even greater fame.

My ambitious dream, to play like a "World Champion Laker," became a horrible nightmare. It was my initiation into the Shriners that gave me such a "charge" that I will never forget. The gals initiation ceremony was staged in the Minneapolis Auditorium, the home base of the Lakers. Harassing the neophytes with outrageous stunts in front of a bloodthirsty audience was the purpose of the ceremony.

A mock Laker's basketball game was played on a part of the huge Minneapolis auditorium floor, and I was chosen to participate. Ironically I was issued one of George Mikan's old uniforms, his world famous number "99." The shirt might have fit "Giant George" to a "T," but it dropped a bit on "Li'l Old Me." The entire two teams wore old Laker shirts and shorts, but no shoes. "Why barefooted and why was the entire playing court covered with canvas?" I wondered to myself. I was soon to find out.

After just a short time into the phoney game, I took a long shot at the basket from mid-court and plunk! I made a "swisher." I stopped to make a polite bow and the audience went wild. My ego was really inflated now but the glory did not last very long.

I suddenly found out the answers to my previous questions, "Why the canvas on the floor?" and "Why no shoes?"

Someone threw the switch and electric current of the hottest kind shot up into my bare feet. It not only knocked out any ego left in me, but gave me the feeling of running over live coals. We all tried to stay airborne away from the "sparkling floor."

I ran as hard as I could to try and keep my two "hot footsies" off that "volcanic canvas." Finally I could run no more and fell in a dead heap in the sidelines, completely exhausted.

I had not only passed that most unusual initiation and became a proud Nobel of the Mystic Shrine, but I had the thrill of my life, a "hot shot" making a "long shot," while wearing Mikan's number 99.

In honor of telecommunications

The California Highway Patrol joins with law enforcement and public safety agencies across the country in observing National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week, April 9-15.

"The effectiveness of our officers is greatly dependent on the careful analysis and professional judgement of our Telecommunications Operators," said Captain

Don Watkins, Commander of the CHP's El Cajon area office. "Without the careful analysis and professional judgement provided by CHP Dispatchers, uniformed personnel would be handicapped in their ability to function as peace officers and guardians of public safety. In our business, dispatchers often are the only source of information and help for an officer in a crisis situation."

* "The skills and compassion with which our telecommunication operators deal with people who are distraught, angry or in trouble make them an indispensable part of the CHP. During this week, we honor and salute our telecommunication operators and supervisors for their dedicated service," concluded Watkins.

Earthquake preparedness

Part 2 of 2

On Friday, April 14 at 10 a.m., a major earthquake will strike San Diego County. The rupture will occur off the coast of San Diego and be a massive 6.9. Damage will be widespread with hundreds killed and thousands injured. Emergency agencies throughout the county will be unable to effectively deal with this major catastrophe.

This is the scenario that can be expected in San Diego County when a damaging earthquake strikes.

At 10 a.m. on Friday, April 14, the San Diego County Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) will be activated with a special message and warning for all listening to a participating San Diego EBS station.

Directly during the EBS activation, KFMB Radio (760 AM DIAL) will broadcast a half-hour earthquake radio dramatization.

Schools, private industries and municipal agencies throughout the County will be listening to the realistic earthquake scenario. The broadcast will include field reports from disaster scenes, EBS announcements from County officials, and information regarding utilities and restoration of vital services. The program will be filled with tips on individual and family preparedness.

How on earth can you prepare for such a devastating event? The Earthquake Preparedness Committee offers these suggestions:

- Every home and every car should be equipped with a first-aid kit and instructions. Medical services will be difficult to obtain.

- Be sure all family members know where emergency supplies are located—and that they are to be used only in an emergency. Include food, water, first-aid kit, fresh batteries, a flashlight and radio and a manual can-opener in your emergency box.

- When the ground stops rolling, check for injuries and administer first-aid. Check for gas leaks, broken water pipes and fallen electrical lines. Turn on a battery-powered radio and listen for information from officials.

- Your water heater can provide your family with gallons of fresh water after a quake...if it hasn't crashed to the floor. Secure it to the wall with galvanized plumbers' tape.

- Keep cash stashed. Banks will be closed after a big quake. Even $50 in cash can help you meet minor family crises.

- Know where the gas main is located in your home and business...and how to turn the gas off at the main valve if you smell gas or if there is a fire hazard.

- Every home and business should have a portable radio, flashlights and fresh batteries.

- Plan what each member of your family should do if the "Great Shake" hits and you are not all together. It could be several days before roads are clear and parents can return home from work to collect their children. Your children should know what to do until you return. And parents should know what their children's school is prepared to do to assist. Work out a plan for reuniting your entire family.

- If you're in bed when an earthquake hits, stay there. Use your pillow to protect your head from flying debris and glass. At bedtime, close drapes or blinds to minimize danger of flying glass.

- When the big one rolls through Southern California the very ground you walk on will ripple in huge waves just like the ocean. Furniture will slide and heavy objects will topple. Safety experts suggest you fasten furniture like bookcases and china cabinets to walls and floors where possible, to avoid being crushed by moving or falling objects. Secure mirrors and pictures to walls with more than one fastener. Move heavy items from top to lower shelves.

- The kitchen may be the most dangerous place to be in an earthquake. Food cooking on the stove can easily be upset in the shaking, starting a fire. Refrigerators and microwave ovens can crush you and dishes and glassware become deadly projectiles. If you're in the kitchen when an earthquake hits, get out—fast!

- Always have an ample supply of any necessary prescription medications on hand. Hospitals will be overrun by the critically injured and many pharmacies won't be open even several days after a big quake. If you wear contact lenses, keep a spare pair of glasses at your home and place of employment. Debris and dust in the air after a quake will make wearing contact lenses uncomfortable for many.

- Protect yourself, your family and your employees from flying glass in an earthquake by installing a protective film over untempered panes. Replace office partition glass with acrylic materials.

- Earthquakes can mean power failures. Don't try to use an elevator—use the stairs. If you've planned ahead, you'll know where to find the flashlight and fresh batteries you'll need to negotiate a black stairwell.

- Communications after a big quake will be difficult because of power outages and downed lines. Be certain your telephones are back on the hook so that active lines aren't needlessly tied up. Use the telephone only in extreme emergencies.

- Keep a pair of comfortable flat shoes in your car and at work. Flat shoes will be essential if you have to walk several miles home from your stranded car.

- Disabled people must take extra precautions to survive an earthquake. If you are in a wheelchair when a quake hits, stay in it, lock the wheels and cover your head with your arms. Make sure your neighbors are aware of your limitations so they can assist you after the quake. Call 565-3490 for a special booklet on earthquake preparedness for people with disabilities.

• Don't run outside after an earthquake. Leave the building only after you have determined what hazards lie outside. Falling debris kills more people than earthquakes.

• Plan and practice what to do when your house begins to shake. Identify safe spots and conduct surprise drills for your family so they can practice getting under a desk or table or into a doorway (interior hallways are often safest) away from windows and objects that might fall. Ask children to point out the dangerous areas you have identified in your home that must be avoided during an earthquake.

Preschool expansion OK'd

At its regularly scheduled meeting, Monday, the Lemon Grove City Council approved a student enrollment expansion request of the Lemon Grove United Methodist Church Red Balloon Preschool to increase present capacity from 20 to 48 youngsters. The school, for students to 5 years, is at Washington Street & Golden Avenue.

The increase in enrollment had been opposed by nearby neighbors but other neighbors indicated that the school did not create a noise problem.

Council approved the expansion with the understanding that the church would not oppose formation of an assessment district later and to provide an irrevocable offer to dedicate right-of-way on Washington when and if needed.

Council revoked the business license of W.E. Reese after it was determined that he had changed the use of the property he was using at 8105 Lemon Grove Way. The license had been issued for auto sales but City Staff claimed that the use had been converted from auto sales to junk yard and storage.

The Community Development Agency approved a 1989-90 budget of $960,000. Some of the expenditures for the year included a solid wall at Golden Avenue School, $40,000; Broadway Parking District, $30,000; Property Acquisition for Downtown Parking, $415,000; Commercial Rehabilitation Program, $140,000; Rehabilitation Grants and Administration, $215,000; Streetscape Services, $25,000; and Lester Parking, $50,000.

City manager Jack Shelver said that $50,000 of the funds would come from the unused billboard removal fund. $50,000 had been budgeted for sign removal, but the removal was made without cost to the City.

Council also agreed that non-conforming commercial uses that existed prior to 1983 in general commercial and heavy commercial zones could be continued in that use or expanded, subject to the approval of a conditional use permit. Shelver said that it may be presumed that expansion of non-conforming use may be found consistent with the General Plan under certain criteria.

The firm of Home Specialties Supply, 8321 Broadway, had requested a conditional use permit to continue use of semi-trailers for storing swimming pool chemicals, which it sells.

Paul T. Cass, the firm's operator, said that the merchandise was not sold from the trailers because it is banned by city law.

He also reported that CALTRANS planned to acquire the property for a ramp to extend Highway 125, (Sweetwater-Broadway). Council agreed to hold the action in limbo and not enforce the regulation as long as the CALTRANS decision is pending.

In a move that will bring another functional park to Lemon Grove, Council approved a proposed trade of vacant property it owns at the northeast corner of Lemon Grove Avenue and Lincoln for the park (Fireman's Park) at School Lane and Central Avenue.

The 13,000 sq. ft. Fireman's Park, currently owned by a private trust, would be converted to a full park if the trade is made. The city-owned property is 10,000 sq. ft.

City Manager Shelver said that each property has been appraised at approximately $130,000. He also said that the City has $60,000 in grant funds which could be used to bring Fireman's Park (called that because it is adjacent to the Lemon Grove Station).

At present, the land is maintained by members of the fire department. It is grass-covered and has a few trees.

The next City Council meeting is Monday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center.

Tex Middleton wins CSL election

Tex Middleton, a long-time resident of Lemon Grove, has been elected Senior Assemblyman of the California Senior Legislature District II, successfully defeating incumbent Avis Johnson, who held the post for eight years.

The purpose of the CSL is to provide the state's senior citizens with the opportunity to identify priority concerns, develop responsive legislation proposals and to lobby for the proposals' inclusion for consideration by the State Legislature, through the traditional election process.

Middleton's office charges him with a number of responsibilities vital to seniors' concerns, including the formulation of age-related bills to be presented by elected officials such as State Assemblyman Pete Chacon, and traveling to Sacramento to represent the districts' constituents who are 60 years of age and older, he said.

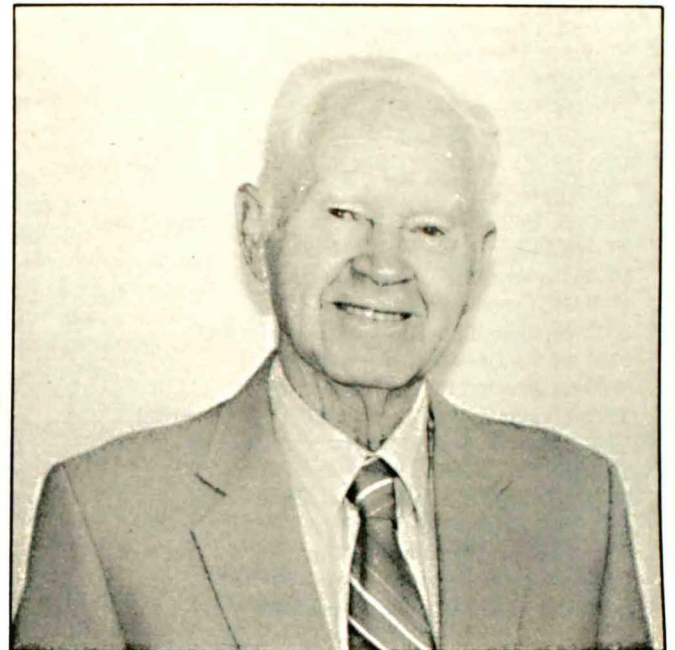

District II encompasses all of San Diego County south of Interstate 8.

Middleton said that one of his local goals as an elected representative is to increase voter turn-out in future CSL elections. He said that of the 366,000 persons over 60-years-old in San Diego County, 200,000 are registered to vote, but only 3,000 did vote in the statewide election March 21.

He intends to work toward registering all qualifying seniors in his district, focusing on those who reside in residential care facilities, working with the facilities to establish voters' polling places, and to encourage more balloting by mail.

Middleton cited the difficulties many seniors experience in obtaining transportation to polling places to exercise their vote.

One of his priorities is to accomplish the removal of social security funds from the federal budget, where it was placed during Lyndon Johnson's presidential term, to help resolve government deficit, Middleton said. He is a member of Save Our Security Organization.

Tex Middleton, newly-elected District II representative to the California Senior Legislature Assembly.

"The social security budget, some $50 billion, needs to be protected. It's currently borrowed to cover government debts, at 3% interest, and that's just not right," Middleton lamented.

As one of the 120 elected members of the CSL, Middleton will participate in the organization's annual session held in Sacramento in October. There, members prioritize the top ten senior issues and state legislators are selected to carry legislation which will resolve or implement these ten issues.

Since inception of the program in 1981, CSL has enjoyed a 75% success rate on the passage of legislation based on CSL priorities such as Nursing Home Reform, Adult Day Health Care, Alzheimers programs, Rural Transportation, Granny Housing, Elder Abuse, Crimes Against the Elderly, Medical Assistance programs and increasing nutrition site funding.

CSL is funded with voluntary contributions to the California Fund for Senior Citizens. More than 108,000 Californians contributed an average of $4.44, a total of $481,000 last year. Nearly four-and-a-half million older California citizens benefit from activities supported by CFSC.

Middleton, who has been active in senior concerns for several years is a member of the county-wide Nutrition council Title III-C, and served as its chairman.

He is that council's representative to the Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council, which he chairs, and serves as liaison to 28 nutrition sites. He has been a representative to the East County Council on Aging and to the State House Conference on Aging, in addition to continued dedication to a host of other committees and boards which deal with senior matters.

He will meet with senior constituents and continue to urge them to share their concerns with him, Middleton said, so that he may be able to resolve them.

Sheriff's deputies resolve domestic squabble

A domestic squabble between a San Diego pair became a fracas Sunday evening, before Sheriff's deputies resolved it.

Jose Ygnacio Blanco, 53, a resident of 6145 Kurtz St., San Diego, was arrested on charges of resisting arrest, spousal abuse with injury, battery on an officer without injury, and child endangerment.

Nancy Carol Saucedo, 34, of the same address, was taken into custody for being drunk in public, resisting arrest, battery on an officer, and child endangerment, according to Detective Bruce Fulton, spokesman for the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Department.

The scene unfolded when Deputy Linda Jackson was flagged down by witnesses who reported that a brown station wagon had driven off the roadway on the 6900 block of Federal Blvd., near College Avenue, with a woman hanging out the passenger-side window, calling for help.

Jackson located the vehicle, which had one wheel up on the curb. She noted that the occupants were out of the car and "the woman's face covered in blood," Fulton said the report read.

Jackson immediately radioed for additional support units and paramedics.

As Jackson approached the station wagon, a young boy of about 8 years told her, "My dad hit my Mom," in a distressed manner. Jackson also noted a doberman pinscher dog in the rear seat of the car.

The pair began to re-enter the vehicle, Blanco into the passenger side, and Saucedo into the driver's, who told Jackson, "We don't need you," and attempted to close the car door, which Jackson thwarted.

Deputy Randy Dibb arrived in response to Jackson's request for assistance, whereupon Saucedo emerged from the car and, shouting, moved toward the deputies threateningly. Blanco also left the car at this point to aid Saucedo.

Saucedo, hurling verbal abuse, then physically attacked Deputy

Terry who had just arrived on the scene. He was able to block her blows and subdue the woman and handcuff her.

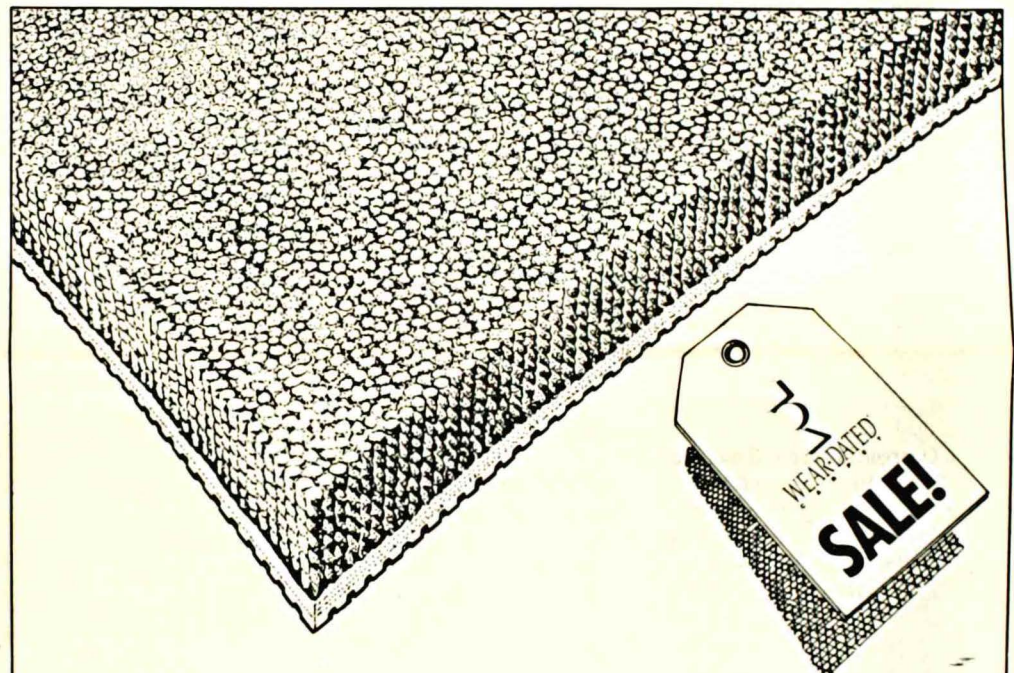

Blanco, enraged, was also restrained by deputies, the report said.

Saucedo refused offered medical attention. The child was transported to Hillcrest Receiving Home, and the dog impounded by County Animal Control, Fulton said.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Sure!

Nearly everyone who has been interested in sports over the years knows Big Al.

Al Couppee was particularly notable in San Diego a few years back when he was sports director of TV Ch. 10. He had been the radio voice of the Padres baseball team when the games were played at Lane Field at the west end of Broadway near the Bay. At the time his radio teammate was Al Schuss, deceased.

Coup's athletic fame spreads from a golden gloves boxing championship in his school years (middle, light and heavy weight), through college and professional football.

He is a masterful emcee and raconteur. He speaks at dozens of sports banquets each year, although he is happily retired at Canyon Lake, near Lake Elsinore.

Nearly everyone knows those things about Coup. What may not be known until now is that he is about to become father of a book, already in the hands of the publishers. He has given it the tantalizing title, "One Magic Year, 1939." It will hit the newsstands this year.

Just last week we helped him box up his typewritten copy of his book for delivery to the publishers - 375 pages of it.

Wow! It's all about the Coupperian year of 1939.

I have enjoyed Couppee as a friend for many years. He is a truthful and loyal friend. I've listened to Coup relate many of the yarns that spice his book. As a frequent banquet-goer, I can attest to having heard hundreds of his stories, but seldom was he repetitious.

Couppee writes like he talks - with authority. The only part of Coup that will be missed in his writing is his big, heartwarming smile that lightens up his face and brightens his eyes when he is talking.

For me, his book is timely. I had been doing some research on book writing when I learned that Coup had just finished his book. In my research I had come across a newspaper column published several weeks earlier. It was a perceptive piece by the distinguished columnist James Dent, who has for years plied his trade in the Charleston (W. Va.) Daily Gazette.

Dent's piece was on marketing books. In his column he related how a friend reported rushing out to buy a copy of "The Satanic Verses" to see why the Ayatollah became excited enough to offer several million dollars to the person or persons who would shoot-on-sight the author of "The Satanic Verses."

Dent asked his friend, "What did you think about it?"

"I didn't understand any of it," the friend admitted. "If the Ayatollah hadn't made such a big deal out of it, the book probably would have sold about 2 dozen copies in this country, and no one would have ever heard of it."

By the grace of the Ayatollah and his threat, "Satanic Verses" is still selling like hot cakes and is making a million dollars for the author - enough to pay for all the bodyguards he'll need.

Dent's further study took him to his copy of the "Writer's Home Companion," in which it was indicated that million dollar contracts are something new.

"The Writer's Home Companion" had some anecdotes about authors.

Erle Stanley Gardner, creator of "Perry Mason," one of the most prolific writers ever to set pen to paper, honed his skills in the 1930's working for pulp magazines. At his peak, he produced about 200,000 words every month. Because he was paid by the word, he wrote for length rather than beauty.

Gardner was famous for killing off the bad guys using the last bullet in the hero-detective's revolver. His editor once remarked to Gardner that all his characters were bad shots.

"Listen," said Gardner, "at 3 cents a word, every time I write 'bang' I get 3 cents. If you think I'm going to end a gun battle while my hero has 15 cents worth of unused ammunition in his gun, you're nuts."

And more: Edgar Allan Poe published "Tamerlane and Other Poems" himself. It sold just 40 copies making less than $1 profit. A century later, just one copy sold for $11,000.

Well, so much for book writing. I don't know what Coup's publisher has in mind, but I've already got my order in. I've ordered the first one off the press.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

"Another record-breaking 100 degree day at the beach, with inland temperatures soaring to over 110." Sounds terrible, but coupled with only 10-20% humidity, our San Diego heat waves could be much worse.

Can you imagine that heat mixed with 90% humidity during the day, and nights aggravated by 747 sized mosquitoes? I'm thinking about Minnesota, where all those 10,000 beautiful lakes provide the high humidity and the perfect place for breeding those pesky "skeeters."

Our little Lemon Grove home isn't air-conditioned, but we do have a spa, which is one of the greatest, most appreciated investments we have ever made. The spa was purchased about six years ago, after much research, and was to be used strictly for my arthritis therapy. The maintenance and heating costs are very minimal and well-worth every penny.

We have made our home very liveable, and we enjoy every inch of our tiny parcel of land. My wife, the gardener, has transformed our small backyard into a virtual "Garden of Eden," minus the "bad apples." All her greenery, including fruit trees, vegetables and flowers in abundance, engulf the gazebo that houses my "spectacular spa" which I placed only a couple of steps from the bedroom door for easy access to the showers.

When my wife, Willie Marie, comes home from work each weekday, and only after she sees "Mash," the two of us slide in the refreshing waters of the spa. Oh! How nice that warm bubbling water feels on these extra hot days, and without the sign of a mosquito. The best feeling of all is to look up at the nearby outdoor thermometer that reads higher than the water temperature thermometer (usually 95 degrees).

Enjoying the bubbling, refreshing warm water, armed with a large iced tea and the portable phone by my side, I oftentimes wonder "What the 'po' folk' up at Rancho Santa Fe are doing that day?"

The spa, which was purchased strictly for therapy, has become a make-believe trip to the beach, a wife-husband together time, and a much-needed time for meditation.

Besides my "God-given" wonderful wife and family, I do believe it's a toss-up as to which is most prized possession - the spa or my computer.

A survivorship message

by Dr. Howard Robin, President, San Diego County Unit, American Cancer Society

On April 30, 1989, approximately 500 people will congregate on the grass knolls at Hospitality Point in Mission Bay to celebrate National Cancer Survivorship Day.

There is a great deal to celebrate; over 5 million Americans are now living with a history of cancer. The five-year survival rate for all cancers is now 50 percent; twice what it was in the 1940's. Progress in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer has increased not only the survival rate, but also the quality of life. People aren't merely "surviving" cancer, they now recover to lead healthy, normal lives.

As president of the San Diego County Unit of the American Cancer Society, I've had the privilege to work with San Diego County cancer survivors. I have watched them build the San Diego County United of the American Cancer Society into the number-one fundraising unit in the nation.

Survivors are in the forefront of the American Cancer Society's efforts to provide services to newly-diagnosed patients and their families. More than 150 survivors in San Diego are actively involved in support and rehabilitation groups, such as "Cansup-port," "Reach to Recovery," and the "New Voice Club," counseling as many as 5,000 patients toward survival.

Survivorship is a celebration of all the children who have been through cancer therapy and returned to school; a celebration of all the young adults who have recovered from operations and raised families; a celebration of all those who have overcome disabilities and returned to work.

It is estimated that one of every three Americans will eventually develop some form of cancer. The American Cancer Society estimates more than one million new cases of cancer will be diagnosed in 1989. Awareness of potential cancer survival is essential to conquer this disease.

It is ignorance of improved survival rates that prevents so many people from having the early diagnosis that may save their lives. About 178,000 people with cancer will survive if they participate in early detection programs.

It is my hope that National Cancer Survivorship Day will serve to better educate the public on the realities of cancer survival. Early detection of cancer can significantly improve cancer survival rates.

Toward a greater social responsibility

by Richard "Jake" Jacobsen, Director of Department of Social Services

Between 1987 and the year 2000, unprecedented demographic shifts and other changes will accelerate the need for long-term care services for California's aged and disabled residents. This rising demand for services will result from a dramatic growth in the population of those 65 and over. One out of every nine Californians, or 3.8 million persons, will be 65 or older by the year 2000. At the same time, the oldest portion of the population, those 85 and older, requires the most extensive health care services and is expected to grow more than three times faster than the total population. Between the year 2000 and 2020, the entire population over 65 will grow at three times the rate of the rest of the population.

The following factors will also play a role in increasing the numbers of those in need of publicly funded community-based care as opposed to institutional long-term care services.

- Individuals with chronic physical and mental illness are increasingly able to live at home, if assistance is provided, due to advanced medical technology. For example, experimental drug treatments may prolong the lives of those with chronic illnesses, such as Alzheimer's disease, thereby allowing them to live at home with appropriate supportive services instead of in hospitals or nursing homes.

- The mushrooming Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) epidemic is placing rapidly growing demands on homes and community-based services.

- Hospitals are reducing the average length of stay for patients because the government and private insurers are reducing reimbursement to hospitals. This results in increased referrals to community health care agencies.

To cope adequately in the future, we must examine the systems and services available today, with an eye toward expanding and improving them to meet the future needs of our aged and disabled population.

Due to the changes in the composition of the American family in the last several decades, it is now more difficult for family members to care for aged and disabled family members in the home. One excellent alternative to institutionalization for aged or disabled individuals currently exists in San Diego County through the In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS) program. Administered through the County Department of Social Services, this program provides homemaker services to approximately 12,000 eligible aged and disabled persons so that they may remain safely in their own homes rather than go to nursing homes or other facilities. The domestic and non-medical personal services a social worker will authorize are based on the client's functional level and ability to perform needed tasks.

When IHSS is chosen rather than institutionalization, the aged and disabled live longer and enjoy an improved quality of life because they remain in their own homes, a familiar environment holding warm memories. Their self-esteem and personal feelings of self-worth are maintained and they feel they are still functional. The quality of care provided by IHSS homemakers is significantly better and more personal than that received in most institutions since the IHSS recipients may hire the homemaker of their choice. The disabled and elderly can then maintain the quality of life they have created for themselves.

The IHSS program continually recruits homemakers to provide the needed services. These homemakers play an important role in the care and quality of life of the IHSS program.

Alcohol, teenagers ... they don't mix

by Kathy Logue

"Alcohol, Teenagers ... They Don't Mix" was the theme that the Human Relations Committee of Mt. Miguel High School presented to the sixty students participating in the workshop on March 14.

A series of guest speakers was presented to tell about their experiences with drunk drivers and the serious consequences of driving under the influence.

"I have never been to any other Human Relations workshops, but this one was very well done. It, to me, proved to be very effective and to the point. The speakers were strong and got their points across. When they cried, people in the audience did, too," said Tracy Harris.

Colleen McAllister gave a detailed testimony of what occurred the night her brother was killed by a drunk driver and what happened to her, and her family, in the days following the accident.

Jeanie Jones, whose son was killed by a drunk driver on July 8, 1985, spoke about the lasting effects that one drunk driver has had on her family's life. She also told students about her involvement with San Diego's chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), of which she is currently vice president. MADD is working to get tougher legislation against drunk driving offenders.

After Ken Hoyt, the keynote speaker, gave his presentation, a group of young adults that call themselves "Teen Connection" entertained the workshop participants with dramatic sketches and song and dance routines dealing with what happens to people who get involved with drugs and alcohol.

Speaking on the legal aspects of drunk driving, Sergeant Burkett from the Lemon Grove Sheriff Station, fielded questions from students about hypothetical situations of drinking and driving, involving minors.

After the presentations, literature about drinking and driving was made available to students who were then treated to a sing-along by Mr. Ric White and Mr. John Stende, and a potluck luncheon.

Human Relations workshops are open to all students, provided that they can arrange their absence from school with all of their teachers.

The stories above, below, and far right were submitted by Mount Miguel journalism teacher Patricia Curtis under a new cooperative program between the newspaper and local high schools. We hope to encourage students in journalism by publishing their stories and photographs.

ROTC Military Ball April 29

by Michele Myers

"The Military Ball is the social highlight of ROTC spring semester," said Lt. Col. Yenter about the upcoming ROTC Military Ball.

This year the Military Ball will be held at the Carlton Oaks Country Club on April 29. The tickets for this event are $16 a person. This includes a sit-down dinner and dancing. The highlight of the Military Ball is the announcement of the queens and their attendants.

At the Ball, men are required to wear their uniforms or white shirts with bow ties, and ladies are required to wear formal gowns.

This year, the ROTC's from both Mt. Miguel and Santana will be attending the ball, which will last from 6 p.m.-12 a.m.

Lt. Col. Yenter, Senior Army Instructor of Mount Miguel's ROTC, stated, "It is always a pleasure to see how handsome our men are in uniform, and how pretty our ladies look in their formal."

First high school authors' workshop organized by district librarians

On April 13, the Grossmont Union High School District Library Council held its first annual Author Workshop and luncheon. This year's site was the library at Santana High School.

Each high school was invited to select ten students with excellent writing potential, who were interested in writing as a hobby or career. The librarian at each school acted as the co-ordinator, and a teacher helped each librarian by accompanying the students to the workshop.

The ten writers chosen from Monte Vista were Rob Howard, Paula Kline, Jennifer Pampay, Teri Tischer, Becky Bramblett, Josh Turgeon, Erica Strong, Brian Meyer and Mike Siscoe. Lyle Andrews, creative writing teacher, accompanied them to the workshop. Mrs. Pauline Forman, Monte Vista librarian, was the prime mover in pulling everything together on time. Three guest speakers offered valuable information and advice to the roomful of interested students.

Mr. Martin Johnson, Santana

teacher, spoke on the ability to recognize and use anything that might inspire a writer. After speaking, he offered the ninety students a chance to write, by handing out pictures from a book by Harris Burdick.

The second speaker, Bob Wade, discussed "Writing as a Career." Mr. Wade, the book critic for the San Diego Union, has written 46 novels and is working on his 47th and 48th, speaking from wide, practical experience.

A very popular writer of books for young adults, Jackie Shannon, offered her expertise on getting published. After answering many questions, she allowed the fledgling writers an opportunity to examine her original manuscripts and some contracts from agents and publishers.

After the session was completed, the workshop participants were served lunch. All students seemed excited at the prospect of "getting published." The first annual Workshop for Writers, according to those interviewed, was a great success.

High school art and photo show held

by Barbie Di Giacomo

Twelve of Mt. Miguel's students were given the chance to shine at the Second Annual Grossmont Union High School District Art and Photography Show and Competition.

Bobbie Kagey, Colleen Graham, Richard Luna, Christie Emerson, Barbie Di Giacomo, Hien Nguyen, and Gynithe Morris, whose piece won an honorable mention, were the seven art students from Mt. Miguel whose pieces were accepted into the competition. Matt Olson, Daryl Weed, Becky Miller, Joanie Belisle, and Mike Stahl were the five photography students to participate in the photography section of the competition.

Although Gynithe Morris' was the only art piece from Mt. Miguel to place, Ms. Ruiz, the art teacher at Mt. Miguel, said, "It was an honor just to get a piece into the show. The judges were professional artists and it was difficult just to get into the competition."

All contestants submitted their pieces through their teachers on Wednesday, March 29. The pieces were then judged, and prizes were given. All pieces which were accepted are now showing at the El Cajon Performing Arts Center from 11 a.m.-4 p.m., throughout the month of April.

The eyes have dimmed, but the light shines through

Ernie Pechstein is a mellow fellow. He's robust, sharp as a tack, filled with good humor and he has a headful of silver hair to be envied.

Margie Pechstein is gracious, feminine and lighthearted. She is Ernie's bride of just ten months.

They both will confess only to being "somewhere beyond three-quarters of a century" in age.

The both have committed their golden years to volunteer works and to "making our corner of the world a better place to be," as Ernie likes to say.

And they are both blind.

Add to this twosome, a third. Jax is a sleek, amber-eyed black Labrador retriever, who knows his place; in Ernie's and Margie's hearts as well as on the business-end of a guide dog's harness. Jax represents an independence that the Pechsteins would not otherwise enjoy.

Ernie and Margie each lost their ability to see gradually, and separately. Each lost their long-time spouses as they were learning to cope with the loss of vision.

Ernie is a victim of degenerative retinitis, a progressive erosion of the retina (at the rear of the eye) and usually caused by poor blood circulation. He lost the use of his right eye seven years ago. Four years later, the left eye ceased to function. He is able to sense only night from day.

She suffered from cataracts, an eye disease wherein the lens of the eye gradually becomes opaque. Eight years ago, Margie had the cataract removed from her right eye, with which she retains little sight. The vision in her left eye was lost due to a surgical accident, during her second cataract removal. Corneal implants, highly successful for many, are not possible for Margie. She is able to detect sharp contrasts and large patterns.

Ernie, a Lemon Grove resident of 42 years, discovered assistance at the San Diego Center for the Blind. He learned to manipulate a red-tipped, probing cane to locate steps and obstacles within his path. He learned to eat, unsighted, and to cook and bake.

"He bakes pies, biscuits and all of our wheat bread, weekly," Margie said proudly.

"But I've broken every [drinking] glass in the house; we now have plastic tumblers," Ernie countered, chuckling.

Margie also attended classes at the Center for the Blind, and her achievements included learning how to type.

Together, they explained the method they learned for handling money; bills are folded in distinct patterns, according to denomination. Coins, of course, are determined by size and weight.

They graduated from the center, together, in September of 1987.

"We can't praise the San Diego Center for the Blind enough," Ernie said.

"It's an organization that really cares for people. They teach 'mobility.' Mobility is a great thing."

"The greater number of teach-

Margie, Ernie and Jax Pechstein, a very special trio

ers that are blind themselves, or [otherwise] handicapped, give you a new perspective on life," he continued, as his wife nodded in agreement.

"Besides the fact that the center is where we met!" Margie said emphatically.

Both of them devastated by recent widowhood, and the arduous illnesses their former spouses suffered, they entered the center with achingly lonely hearts and bleak thoughts of the future.

"Blindness itself is traumatic, and we were about as lonely as lonely can be," said Ernie softly, remembering.

Margie perceives her blindness to be almost a blessing, "otherwise," she said, "I would not've met Ernie."

They attend church, and love to travel. In less than two years, they have visited the Midwest, Oregon, Indiana, Florida, (where he proposed to her 27,000 feet above Tampa), Las Vegas (their elopement destination), and they've even cruised the Caribbean, as honeymooners. Usually Jax accompanies them.

Jax, raised by a young 4-H club member as a pup, was trained by San Rafael Guide Dog, Inc., an instructional center for dogs and their future unsighted partners.

The dog's intensive training required five months; Ernie's, "a harrowing 28 days," he said. Jax, with his extensive training, is valued at $16,442 - a gift of San Rafael Guide Dog, Inc., which is funded through private contributions.

"Jax is a companion, not a pet. I can't afford to make a pet of him," Ernie emphasized.

His and Margie's courtship progressed via telephone as he learned to put his faith in the animal destined to share their lives. Together, man and dog maneuvered hundreds of steps and chairs, dozens of buses and busy city streets, as well as the chaos of San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf - a challenge even for the sighted.

Ernie grinned as Margie concluded her tale, adding, "Jax is quite a ham. He maneuvers well on the dance floor, and manages to stay out of other dancers' paths. I think he enjoys it."

Jax is a very important facet of their lives, and crucial to their mobility. When he is in harness, Jax is in charge, as as Ernie begins a brief demonstration, one stated.

Or rather, understated. He says little, as Margie recounts his 1987 winning of the Mary Yerxa Award, presented annually by the San Diego Center for the Blind, for exhibiting the most progress toward independence; and that they have both been recognized as "Most Inspirational Student."

She reveals that Ernie was valedictorian of his class at San Rafael, and that he has served on panels for the blind on KPBS Television, in addition to the Volunteer of the Year award the couple received from Headstart last year. They are nominated for the charity's Humanitarian Award this month.

Their combined spirit is endearing.

They agree that lack of transportation is an obstacle to independence, particularly to areas outside of Lemon Grove. But Margie insists that aspects of personal grooming run a close second.

"... Whether your eyebrows are straight, and you cannot tell if you have a runner in your hose!"

Ernie counters with the hazards of shaving, which he does by "feel"; "... carefully. Sometimes I bleed a lot, then I get grumpy!" But for all that, he said, "We don't actually feel we're handicapped. We feel we're simply inconvenienced."

"I feel we are better adjusted than many people who don't have the visual handicap we have; we're a very workable team," Ernie pointed out.

"Having one another is the best reward we could have," Margie agreed.

DINING & ENTERTAINMENT

Annual school Recognition Dinner to be held April 27

Public Schools week, April 23-29, will be observed in Lemon Grove at the Lemon Grove Masonic Lodge 736 Public Schools Committee's annual Public Schools Recognition Dinner, Thursday, April 27 at 6:30 p.m. The event is held at the lodge, 2590 Main Street. The public is invited to attend.

Student Council leaders are invited every year, and share a brief presentation detailing the accomplishments of each Student Council at all of the local schools during the year.

Awards are also presented by the lodge to select employees of the school district.

Taking part will be Dr. Jim Justeson, Superintendent of the Lemon Grove School District, members of the school district board, school personnel, student council members' parents, and Masons, according to Sammy Schwartz, worshipful master of the Lemon Grove Masonic Lodge.

The theme for the evening of recognition is "Public Schools - Learning for Living: A Place to Stop Drug Abuse."

Leyton Tinder, chairman of the dinner for the Masonic Lodge, said dinner tickets may be acquired from lodge members and at all Lemon Grove schools. The tickets are $4.

"Our public schools are a reflection of the society in which we live," said a Mason spokesman. "Society's problems are school problems."

"It follows, then that when drugs became a threat throughout our communities, the schools became involved."

"It is reassuring to note that all public schools are currently participating in a vigorous program whose goal is a drug-free America. Results to date: better student attitudes, improved scholastic achievement and fewer dropouts."

"Optimism prevails," he said.

BUSINESS & REAL ESTATE

Walter's Jewelry celebrates 40th

Walter's Jewelry is celebrating its 40th anniversary next Tuesday.

"Forty years, in the same place. I think that makes us the oldest established retail business in Lemon Grove, in its original location and under the same ownership," Jerry Walter said.

Walter, a big, soft-spoken, silver-haired man opened his shop door for the first time on April 25, 1949. His wife, Jeanne, has worked along side him, as have all of their eight children at one time or another. A daughter, Judy Kyler, has worked with her parents for 10 years, she noted, which seemed to come as a surprise to her Dad.

Married in 1942, Jeanne and Jerry brought their family to the San Diego area in 1948 from Illinois, where he had attended the Bradley Polytech Institute of Horology. In 1937, prior to meeting Jeanne, Walter had served as an apprentice jeweler and watch repairman for three years, in his native North Dakota.

Forty years ago, the shop at 7773 Broadway, just a short half-block of the city's Big Lemon, was at town's edge. The community grew up to surround the business, and the residents have shown a certain loyalty to Walter's Jewelry, Walters said.

"Lemon Grove has been good to us... We've raised eight kids. We've been pretty comfortable," he commented.

Perhaps "comfortable" is the key. A stop into the old-fashioned shop is just that. No pressure, helpful personal service still exists here, amid the competition of large discount stores with serve-yourself, dare-you-to-locate-assistance attitudes prevalent today. The Walter crew can find a moment in the flow of customers to greet one, pass a pleasantry with another, and still get that hiccup in your timepiece repaired if you can "just leave it for an hour."

Loyalty is also a key. Many of Walter's customers have moved away, over 40 years' time, and several of those continue to rely on the personal service and integrity that is Walter's Jewelry.

"We mail work out all the time. Like doctors, people don't like to change jewelers. Some mail a piece in to us... More often they'll save the pieces for months, even years, then bring them all in as they're passing through.

Walters has seen fashions come and go... and come again. Like charm bracelets, whose popularity is revived every decade or so. "And there's always a need to keep abreast of changing technology," Walters continued.

"The watches have gone from mechanics to automatics, and now they're all quartz," Walters said, adding that the new quartz-operated watches require only a new battery from one year to the next, generally, because of the change in interior watchworks.

Lean pickings for a business whose overhead costs are garnered through watch repair; where jewelry sales constitute the profit.

"Still," Walter said, "there are very few repairmen around anymore. And in a small operation like this, if you're not a repairman, you're out of luck."

Walter has no plans to retire, though he's taking it a little easier these days. His daughter's assistance lends a lot to his ease, and Jeanne is in the shop on Saturdays.

He said that a new store-front facade is planned for his, and neighboring businesses, through the city's redevelopment grant program.

Enthusied, Walter said, "The sketches look good. I'm looking forward to the results."

And he quietly agrees to the old adage, "The more things change, the more things stay the same." He would know.

Business Briefs

Roy and Millie Lamb are the new managers of Lemon Grove Self Storage, 2305 Lemon Grove Avenue. They came from Lakeport, California, where they managed another storage business.

The Lambs reside at Lemon Grove Self Storage, Millie Lamb said, which increases the security of the gated facility.

She said the firm has 350 storage units and 12 outside parking spaces for the storage of vehicles. It is open seven days a week; 8 a.m.-7 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. on Sunday.

The Lemon Grove branch of Imperial Savings and Loan has earned the company's perpetual trophy for the second consecutive quarter, announced Marty Spuehler, branch manager.

The trophy is presented in recognition of the branch staff's successful efforts in customer service and profit earnings, he said.

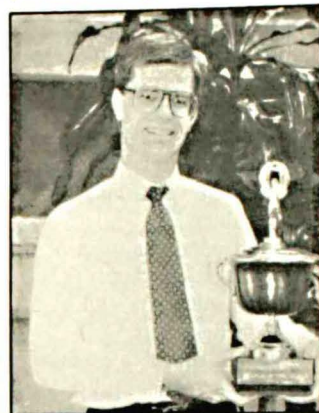

"And we intend to keep the trophy right here in Lemon Grove!" Spuehler added.

The local office was awarded Branch of the Quarter for the final quarter of 1988, and for the first quarter of 1989.

The branch also earned rankings of fourth in customer service and twelfth in profitability of the 88 offices nationwide.

Susan Smith, who is second-in-command of the Lemon Grove branch, received recognition as Customer Service Manager of the Quarter.

"These improved ratings require team effort from everyone in the branch. It's an ongoing process we all work hard to achieve, and we're all proud of our ratings," said Spuehler. The rankings are accomplished by an independent rating firm which sends representatives to each branch, in the guise of customers," Spuehler said.

Throughout the month of May, San Diego-based Dean's Photo Service, Inc. will donate 20 cents from every 50-minute photo service to the Children's Miracle Network Telethon.

Scheduled to be televised live from Disneyland on KFMB-TV Channel 8, Saturday and Sunday, June 3 and 4, proceeds from this important fund-raiser will benefit children's health care facilities throughout the country.

All money raised through Dean's will be donated to the Children's Hospital and Health Center.

"Last year, the telethon raised $1.4 million in San Diego alone," said Adele Hendricks, vice president of retail operations at Dean's. "Our goal is to help surpass that amount this year."

Dwayne Buth: An athlete to remember

by Doug Kemp

Dwayne Buth, state 165 pound wrestling champion

In the midst of dawn a warrior arose, a valiant one full of spirit, dexterity, and brawn.

He is Mt. Miguel's 1988-89 king, A.S.B. commissioner, and a true champion. Dwayne Buth, a senior wrestler at Mt. Miguel, finished his senior season with an astonishing mark of 49 wins and 1 loss. 38 came by way of a pin. His career record for four years of varsity competition totals an amazing 136 wins (116 pins) and just 15 losses.

In his freshman year, Buth had a varsity record of 12 wins and 3 losses before undergoing major knee surgery. Doctors told Buth that he would never be able to wrestle again. However, that didn't stop Dwayne Buth. After rehabilitation, he came back his sophomore year to take 2nd in league and 2nd in C.I.F. His junior year he succeeded in placing 2nd in league, 2nd in C.I.F., and 2nd in state.

"State is mine in '89," was a personal slogan that Dwayne lived his senior year by. And at the CIF wrestling meet in Stockton March 4th, Dwayne won the state 165 pound title.

Dwayne will always be remembered as this decade's premier wrestler from Mt. Miguel, a state champion, and a champion of spirit as well.

Hale goes for third at Cajon Speedway

Ed Hale has won the first two sportsman stock main events in his Camaro racer. But that car will be relegated to the sidelines Saturday night when the Winston Racing Series swings back into action at Cajon Speedway.

The 51-year-old Hale will have a brand new Pontiac Grand Prix at his disposal this week in the 30-lap finale.

As an added attraction, the first destruction derby of the season will follow the sportsman, street, pony and bomber stock main events.

The street stock feature will be 25 rounds with both the pony stocks and bombers stocks making 20 tours of the 3/8 mile oval located next to Gillespie Field.

The street stocks should have another exciting go Saturday. Both of their first 2 features have been hotly contested with Ron Doster and Steve Bush each picking off wins.

Looking to visit victory lane will be Mike Carver, Jerry Gay, Dale Wineteer, Mark Kroeger and Daryl Eaton in the always competitive division.

Athletes for a Healthier Youth visit San Miguel Elementary

What can kids do after they "say no" to drugs? A new program implemented last February in elementary schools throughout the county doesn't stop at promoting drug abuse prevention, it also presents alternatives for success through education.

Athletes for a Healthier Youth, presented by the Health Awareness Foundation, provides celebrity athletes representing a broad range of sports, as positive role models to students, according to Dr. Robert McGlenn, foundation president.

The program consists of a carefully developed curriculum which includes a four-part video "Journey to Success," a workbook designed to be used in conjunction with the video segments, a "Be Successful" poster, and school assembly and classroom visits with the sports stars, McGlenn said.

The school assembly includes an introductory statement from each visiting athlete, who briefly details his or her early inspiration to succeed. During classroom visits, students are encouraged to ask questions. Each of the athletes discuss their personal experiences in school, goal-selection, how losing a game teaches a player which skills need improvement, and that success in every field requires effort.

Every student later receives a letter of congratulations for something in which they succeed, signed by the athlete who visited their classroom.

Major sponsors which provide most of the funding for Athletes for a Healthier Youth, are San Diego Padres, San Diego Chargers, San Diego Sockers and Alvarado Parkway Institute, McGlenn said.

The Health Awareness Foundation expects to present the program to more than 35 elementary schools annually, McGlenn stated, adding that the foundation is receiving numerous program requests since the "pilot program is now off the ground and flying high."

Presentations may be requested by individual schools or by service organizations as a contribution to a school, by calling McGlenn at 272-8881.

Sports celebrities (from left) Leon White, Willie Buchannon, Jim Brogan, Coach Barney Beagle and Jim Weatherley volunteer their time and provide inspiration for the Athletes for Healthier Youth. The program, available for schools county-wide, was held last week at San Miguel Elementary.

Qualifying track meets being held

Boys and girls born between 1975 and 1982 may participate in running, throwing or jumping events.

Track meet dates are as follows: April 20, La Mesa Dale Elementary, April 21, Maryland Elementary, and April 24, Northmont Elementary. All track meets will be held at 3 p.m.

Sports Commentary

by John E. Wirges

Hallelujah brothers. A dream is gonna come true. At least for a few. Maybe a dream isn't the right word. Better make that a "fantasy." A fantasy all boys have from the time they're 5 or 6, right up 'til they're 56 or more.

The deal is for those who are still young at heart, young enough to still have the dream of youth and a few bucks saved up to enjoy living the dream.

Max Shapiro, who never did grow up, is joining forces with the Padres' Andy Strasberg, another career dreamer, to give San Diego its first ever "Fantasy Baseball Camp."

Officially, Shapiro's SPORTSWORLD organization is joining the Padres in co-producing an "in-season" Fantasy Baseball Camp for 40 dreamers of all ages.

Don't get me wrong. This fantasy camp is not a bunch of over-age coaches using a borrowed facility, a borrowed name and borrowed equipment while the team is out of town.

This camp is not only in mid-season, it takes place during a Padre vs. Los Angeles Dodger series and the final fantasy session will be game that follows a Dodger-Padre game on July 30.

That makes it the second game of a "creative" double-header on a Sunday afternoon at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium.

And the instructors are all former players. Guys who have "been there" and have enjoyed playing professionally the dream that proves there is a "little boy" in all of us.

Steve Garvey heads an "All Star" coaching staff that includes power-hitting Nate Colbert, who is now hitting 'em out for the Lord as an ordained minister.

"Downtown" Ollie Brown will offer help in hitting and throwing 'em out at the plate from "deeeeeeep" right field.

John D'Acquisto and the "Chief" Gene Locklear will pass along secrets from the mound, including where to hide a nail file, if you are interested in learning such things.

The "voice" of the Padres' after-game talk show, Kurt Bevacqua will share the secrets of stealing signs, talk about hitting and provide formal instructions on how to act after hitting a home run in a world series game.

Bob Barton will dust off his gear and once again go behind the plate to instruct catching prospects on the fine art of not getting your fingers broken.

And that's just for starters. OK's are still expected from the likes of Randy Jones and a number of other "still ready to play" former Padre stars.

Shapiro is a genius at putting these things together. He started with basketball camps while he was still assistant coach to Jack McMahon's San Diego Rockets Basketball team.

He began his dream as a ball boy for the old St. Louis Hawks and found he never had to grow up.

And now he offers all grown-ups a chance to return to the days of their youth - when Jack Armstrong was hero and the Lone Ranger galloped across the range to save maidens in distress - and they all wanted to grow up to be major league baseball players.

For more information, call Andy at 283-7294, during working hours any weekday. The fee is $1,295, but you'd better hurry. Those 40 roster spots don't figure to stay open long. Remember the dates July 28-30. Same as the Dodger visit.
